Thank you Madam Chair. Actually, since we are discussing the challenges for the implementation I can't think of a more grave and important challenge than the current circumstances and the current turmoil that are affecting many parts of the world, and many of our member countries. The turbulence is actually in the regions and especially in the Middle East put great burdens and pressures on the limited resources of many countries and the capabilities and it's affecting its key sectors of education, health, water, and municipal services and infrastructure, making it even more difficult to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals in Agenda 2030. My question, actually, to the panel is can IDLO play a role in providing legal solutions for sustainable development and economic opportunities in order to incentivize and to engage more with the private sector to bridge the gap in development financing faced by developing companies. Thank you.
